SSC Summer Program To Attract Over 5500

More than 5,500 persons are expected to enroll for the college program offered by Sacramento State College this summer, Dr. H. J. McCormick, dean of the Summer Session and Educational Services, announced today.

"Five thousand and twenty people registered last summer for the regular six-week Summer Session, the Post Session, and the special session at South Tahoe High school and we anticipate an enrollment increase of about 10 per cent," Dr. McCormick said.

Registration for the six-week summer session which starts today and runs to August 2 will begin at 7 a.m. on open day of the Session in the Physical Education Building on the SSC campus.

A new system of registering according to the initial letter beginning the last name of the student will be introduced this summer.

Registration will continue until 2 p.m. and the order of registration is listed in the Summer Session catalog or may be obtained by calling SSC, GLadston 2-3252.

Registration for evening classes will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on June 24 in the P.S. building. Registration on an individual basis will continue on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in the Registrar's Office in the Administration Building.

Registration for Post Session, August 5 to 30, will take place on August 5. Tahoe Session registration will be held at South Tahoe High School in Al Tahoe on July 8, July 22, and August 5 for each of the three two-week sessions.

McCormick said that 4,128 students enrolled for the six-week session last year, with an additional 553 registering for the Post Session. Tahoe registration totalled 339.

Mann Exhibits Planned Here

An exhibit of photographs, letters, books, and personal artifacts dealing with the life and work of the late Thomas Mann, Nobel laureate and the most notable German writer of the 20th century, will be on display in the Sacramento State College Library, June 24 to July 1, Dr. H. J. McCormick, dean of the SSC Summer Session, announced.

The exhibit, which has been arranged by the Cultural Department of the German Foreign Office through the San Francisco Consulate General, is sponsored by Mrs. Katie Mann, widow of the writer. Materials for the extensive exhibit were drawn from the Thomas Mann Archives of the Institute of Technology in Zurich, Switzerland, Mann's home at the time of his death. Dr. Werner K. Suttner, assistant professor of German at SSC, arranged for the loan of the exhibit, the first time it has been shown on the West Coast.

The purpose of the exhibit, which contains 57 large photographs and more than 200 other items, is to show the unity of Mann's life and work and to demonstrate the conditions, demands, and tensions under which he wrote his novels and essays, Dr. Suttner said.

Mann, who was born in Lubeck, Germany, in 1375, published his first major novel, Buddenbrooks, in 1900 and wrote a formidable array of major works until shortly before his death in 1955. His bitter attacks on the Nazis in the early 1930's made it expedient for him to choose exile from Germany in 1933, first in Switzerland, then Czechoslovakia, and during the 1940's, in the U.S. and to California, where he lived until 1949. In that year he returned to Swit-

SUMMER ACTIVITIES

Several interesting summer activities are up-coming during Sacramento State College's Summer Session.

The SSC Art department is sponsoring the 41st annual California Water Color Society's exhibit, June 24 through July 5.

The show will be on exhibit in SSC's Art Gallery located in the art building.

On July 1, SSC's Music department will sponsor Delores Allen, an SSC graduate student soprano, in concert in the Little Theater at 8:15 p.m.

Convocation Speaker to Discuss Creative Thinking

Creative Thinking will be the topic of Dr. Irving A. Taylor, associate professor of psychology at San Fernando State College, in a convocation, tomorrow at 10 a.m. in Sacramento State College's Men's Gymnasium.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

The address, which is presented by SSC as part of the Summer Session program, is open to the public without charge.

Taylor, a licensed psychologist in New York and California, was formerly director of research at Nowland and Company.

He has also been senior research associate and project coordinator of the Institute for Development Studies; vice-president of Harry Prichett Associates, director of Perceptual Communications Center; professor and chairman of Psychology Department of Missouri State Teachers College, and research psychologist at New York University.

SPECIALIST

A specialist in creativity, communication, perception, attitudes and design, Taylor has published over 80 articles in these areas.

Taylor is a recipient of an award for meritorious socio-psychological research from the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

RECEIVES CITATION

He has also received a citation for original work presented in a paper at the Western Psychological Association. Taylor is currently chairman of the Board of Directors and director of research for the Richard J. Neutra Foundation.

Next convocation is set for July 9 at 11 a.m. when Ralph J. Kapland, author, news analyst and radio and T.V. commentator will speak on How Sane Can One Be in This Confused World? The talk

Research Crew Heads North

An interesting summer lies ahead for a Sacramento State College geology professor and four of his students. Dr. J. Harold Severaid, Associate Professor of Life Science and Assistant Chairman, Division of Science and Mathematics, will lead a combined research and instructional scientific collecting expedition into the Liard River region of extreme Northern British Columbia concurrent with the first Sacramento State College summer session.

MEET ADAMSON

Upon arrival at their destination, Professor Severaid and his students will be met by M. L. Don Adamson, a science and mathematics instructor at McClatchy High School and a candidate for a master of arts degree at Sacramento State College. Adamson chose the Liard Hot Springs area of the Liard Valley to do an intensive ecological study in partial fulfillment of his thesis requirements under Dr. Severaid's supervision.

Adamson, who will spend the entire summer on the study area, will be accompanied early in the summer by his wife and daughters, and later by a brother.

This will be the third trip which Adamson will have made to the area since he began his research.

The preliminary surveys having now been made, the larger research party will devote itself to an extensive survey of the Liard Hot Springs section of the Valley.

LIARD LOCATION

The Liard Hot Springs are located adjacent to the Alcan Highway at a point roughly 180 road miles east of the Alaskan border and 23 airline miles south of the Yukon line.

The presence of hot springs in this Arctic wilderness provides a unique set of ecological conditions not frequently duplicated. Yet, strangely, the Liard has never been the recipient of intensive ecological study by either Canadian or American scientists.

It is largely for this reason that such a remote area was chosen by Adamson as the site and subject of his research activities.

This interest is intensified through knowledge of the fact that the study area will very soon be the site of a large provincial park. Thus, there is an urgent interest on the part of the Canadian Natural Resources officials, as well as the Sacramento State College research party to complete most of the work during the current year.

Dr. Severaid, who had led four similar expeditions within California since joining the Sacramento State College faculty in 1951, stressed the fact that while the initial value of the data and specimens collected at the Liard will be of a research nature, their long-range value as teaching specimens and materials in the various natural history and conservation courses at Sacramento State College will be paramount.

SSC CUSTODY

British Columbia Fish and Game Department has authorized permanent custody by Sacramento State College of all materials collected. Of equal significance is the fact that the Canadian government has indicated a willingness to grant the Sacramento State College researchers freedom of choice relative to specimens needed to carry out the project.

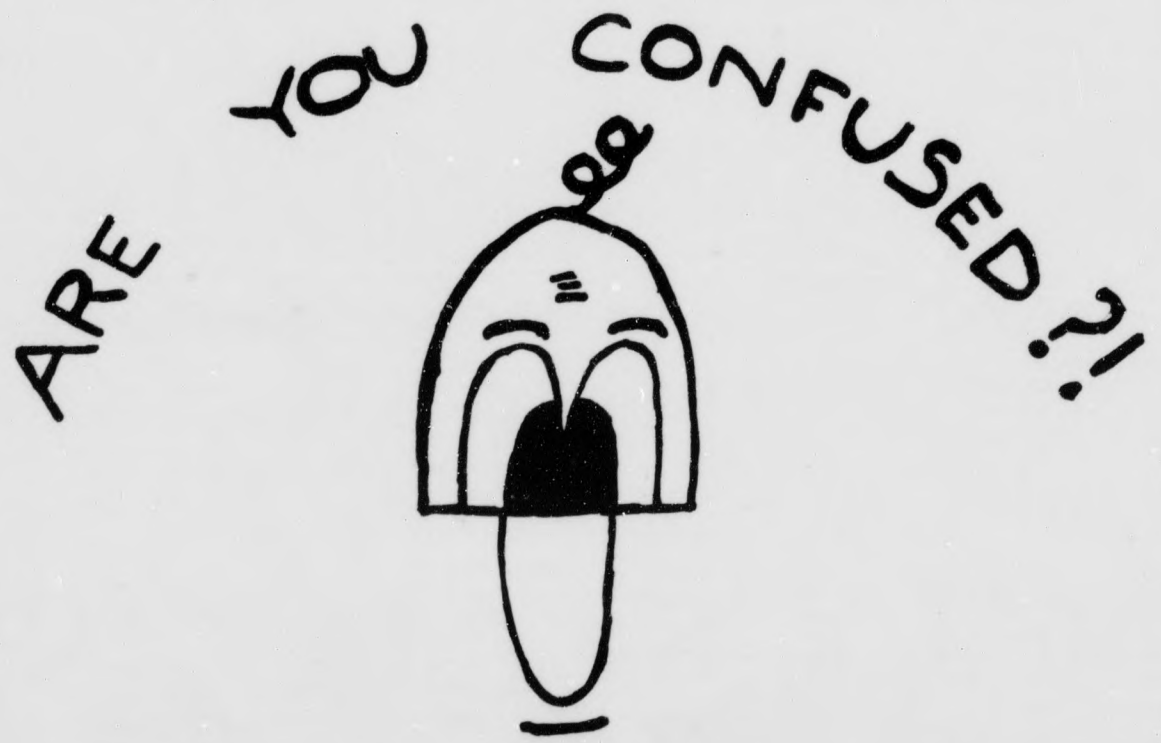

Unlike previous, more local expeditions of this type, the Liard study is being financed jointly by college, private and philanthropic funds. Yet, it is no doubt true that while the participants will admittedly gain much educational and recreational value from their outdoor laboratory experiences, they will, in fact, also be making the largest individual contributions to the project.

LIBRARY HOURS

Library hours for Sacramento State College's Summer Session will be as follows:

Monday through Thursday, 7:45 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Friday, 7:45 a.m. through 4:30 p.m.
Saturday, 9 a.m. through 1 p.m.
Closed Sunday

Library facilities are for the use of SSC faculty and Summer Session students.

Russian Jesuit Priest Will Speak July 19

The only Russian Jesuit priest in the Western hemisphere, the Reverend Andrei Urusov, S.J., Ph.D., will speak at convocation, July 19, at 9 a.m. in the Men's Gymnasium.

TOPIC

Reverend Urusov's topic will be Psychology of Russian People and Communism.

Son of a Russian nobleman, he lost his parents with the coming of the Bolsheviks to power. He was sent abroad and at age 21, studied for the priesthood in Rome.

During World War II, he entered the Jesuit Order and was ordained a priest. Born Russian Orthodox, he kept the Byzantine Rite and was assigned to the Russian group of the order.

LEARNED ENGLISH

He was sent to Ireland where he learned English. In 1955, he acquired an old house and in three years, transferred the building into a Catholic Russian center.

Besides a spiritual and cultural aim, the center also helps to take care of Russian refugees with their various needs. There are about 30,000 Russians in the Bay Area.

In 1958, Father Andrei left for Europe where he spent one year and a half travelling 30,000 miles on a research work on Psychology of Communism. He presented this work as a thesis and was awarded a Ph.D. from University of Montreal.

SSC Sponsors Institute

Polygraph Examiner Training Institute will be offered for the first time this summer by Sacramento State College.

This program, offered by the SSC Foundation, Department of Government and Police Science, is the first of its type to be offered in Northern California.

The complete program offered includes two police science courses in interrogation and detection of deception in addition to the Institute.

A certificate of completion will be awarded to those who successfully complete the course and meet all requirements.

Six units of credit will be awarded for work in the academic courses.

The polygraph examiner is a highly skilled specialist who must have a good academic background, as well as training in primary and related fields that are applicable.

Many times, the freedom and or reputation of a subject will directly depend upon the skill, integrity and judgment of such an expert.

Heading up the institute wil be William B. Melnicoe, associate professor of police science and administration at SSC.

It is recommended by the International Association of Polygraph examiners that police administrators select their agency applicants with great care, preferably from among candidates who are above average in intelligence, have a good background in investigation and who have demonstrated ability in the field of criminal interrogation.

Tahoe Summer Session To Offer Varied Courses

Seventeen summer session courses in the fields of anthropology, art, education, and history will be offered at South Tahoe High School by Sacramento State College in three two-week sessions beginning July 8, Dr. H. J. McCormick, dean of education services and summer session, announced today.

Registration for the courses in all three sessions will be held opening day of the first session.

Students may also enroll on the opening day of each of the sessions which, in addition to the July 8 date, fall on July 22 and August 5. Both lower division courses for freshman and sophomores and upper division courses for juniors and seniors will be offered as well as three courses in Education in the 300 series, which cover requirements for school credentials, McCormick said.

FEES TOLD

Fees for the Tahoe Summer Session courses are $11.50 per unit of college credit or fraction of a unit. A college activities fee of $2 is also payable by students taking four or more units of credit during the entire six weeks of the Session.

Anthropology courses offered include Anthropology 188: The Apache Indians, offered during the first term by George Cook, principal of the Day School on the White Mountain, Arizona, Apache Indian Reservation; Anthropology 187: The Indians of Mexico, second term, taught by Miss Theodora Kreps, instructor in anthropology at Sacramento State College; and Anthropology 126: Indians of California, third term taught by Norman Wilson, former curator of the State Indian Museum and currently technical assistant for the Department of Anthropology at SSC.

Art courses offered throughout all three two-week terms include classes in oil painting, drawing, and watercolor painting, beginning and advanced, to be taught during the first term by Robert Else, professor of Art at Sacramento State College, and during the second and third terms by Larry Weldon, instructor in art at Sacramento City College.

ART COURSES

Professor Paul Beckman of Sacramento State College will offer courses in elementary and secondary art workshop during each of the three terms.

Dr. Merle Vance, assistant professor of education at SSC, will teach audio-visual education during the first term, a workshop in applications of new concepts from mathematics to the elementary schools arithmetic program.

History 109/110, the World Today, will be taught during the first and second terms by Dorothy A. Sexter, a part-time history instructor for Sacramento State College.

History 196, Representative Americans, a study of American history based upon the evolution of careers and contributions of leading Americans to the nation's development, will be offered by Dr. Sam Ross, associate professor of history at SSC, during the third term.
